DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 6/20/2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Argument regarding Kobayashi not disclosing a terminal 13 not clearly integrally extended from and not having the same thickness is not persuasive because as disclose in column 5 lines the terminal 13 which are made of the same steel band 1 do not need to be prepared separately as a number of parts and can easily become integral parts of the stator core and also said terminals can take any desire shape to prevent their coming out of the insulation layer. Therefore the rejection is sustained.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 3-10 and 12-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kobayashi et al. U.S. Patent No. 5239742.

Kobayashi discloses a ring shaped stator core having a plurality of pole teeth erected from an inner circumferential edge portion, a coil winding wound around the pole teeth, and a terminal pin part to which a terminal end coil winding is wound around, wherein the terminal pin part is made of the same material as the stator core and is integrally extended outwardly from the stator core (see column 5, line 25-34) so that the terminal pin part is integrally fixed with the stator core and the thickness of the terminal pin part is the same as the thickness of the stator core, and an entire surface of at least is covered with an insulating layer by applying coating to the stator core, wherein at least an outer surface of the pole teeth of the stator core is covered with insulating layer, and the coil winding is wound around the insulating layer on the pole teeth.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
